

Are You Anxious in Social Situations?

- Do you avoid social situations?
- Do you worry about being embarrassed or looking foolish in social situations?

If so, you may be eligible to participate in a study looking at how social anxiety affects social interactions

WHO: Individuals at least 17 years of age with social anxiety

WHERE: Anxiety Research and Treatment Lab at Ryerson University (near Yonge and Dundas Streets)

WHAT: Telephone interview to determine your eligibility and two separate lab visits to complete questionnaires and an interview (first visit), and a social interaction task (second visit). Each visit will last about 60 minutes.

Eligible individuals will be offered $30 incentive for their participation

For more information, contact the Anxiety Research and Treatment Lab at 416-979-5000, ext. 2184 or interactionstudy@psych.ryerson.ca
